

Message from Chief Editor

It is a matter of extreme pride that Kalinga University is publishing its first International journal, ‘International Journal of Engineering & Extended Technologies Research-2017’. A journal of this magnitude will give all our faculties a good platform to share their experiences and research. Mutual participation and efficient devotion to academics creates a stimulating environment and creates for innovative ideas.

I extend my best wishes to the whole team working to make this dream a reality. I also convey my admiration for all the faculties who have contributed to this initiative by writing commendable research papers. Kalinga University is providing a wonderful opportunity to all the ignited minds for showcasing their talent and dexterity. This journal would be a great source of information to the academicians, scholars and individuals. I wish that this journal becomes a grand success.
